Promotion of SHGs among women

HWT were mobilized the rural women to form groups with aims to improving the living condition of the poor by creating sustainable community based institutions. The Self-help groups provide economic benefits to the women by providing income generating activities. SHGs play a crucial role in improving the savings and credit and also in reducing poverty and social inequalities. One of the greatest achievements of the self-help groups is the impact they have had on raising the awareness of local authorities about the needs of people with economic support and the important participatory role people to play in addressing their needs. The next step is to bring all self-help groups together under one umbrella. Capacity building programme was organized to develop knowledge and skills that enable them to become contributors in their families and communities. We motivate the Self-help groups join together to form federations and become self-sufficient. The success of this self-help group has inspired others to form similar groups. We encourage the Groups to discover their ability to understand, plan and implement the activities needed to change their situation and the community.
